

Leaving a Gift in your Will to the Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust

Preserving the past for future generations

Why Leaving a Legacy to the Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust is so important

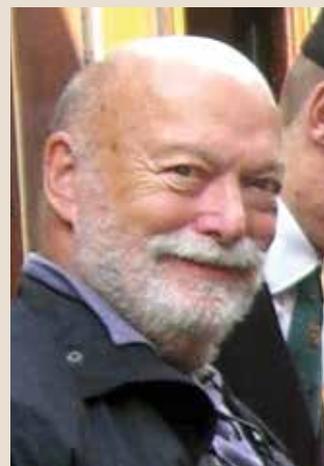

The Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust relies on the generosity of its supporters. We're working hard to secure the level of funding needed to preserve the Railway, and to ensure it remains a leading heritage attraction for future generations to appreciate and enjoy.

The day-to-day income the Railway receives from passenger fares and commercial activities covers the cost of running the trains. Sadly, it does not generate enough money to improve and develop the Railway, so that it can continue to hold its place as an important heritage and tourist destination.

Legacies are an extremely valuable way for the SVR Charitable Trust to provide opportunities for development, and many of our pioneering supporters have chosen to leave a legacy, as their lasting contribution to the Severn Valley Railway. Would you consider joining them?

Your Will ensures your loved ones are taken care of and can help remove potential anguish for them at a difficult time. It is also a chance to leave behind a very special gift to help causes that are close to your heart.

Your legacy to the Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust, however large or small, will help continue the work of the volunteers who originally rescued and preserved the Railway. Please support their efforts, and the continued dedication of those who now operate and maintain the Railway, by leaving a legacy in your Will.

Stewart Clark

Lifelong supporter and champion of the Severn Valley Railway, Stewart Clark, explains why he has chosen to leave a legacy to the Railway:

“I have spent many happy days, and much of my spare time, supporting and enjoying everything this splendid Railway offers. It’s reassuring to know that my support will continue to benefit the Railway when I am no longer around. I’d encourage anyone who wants to make a lasting difference to the SVR to do the same. You might not be in a position to give money right now, but leaving a legacy in your Will is another way to show your support.”

Investing in the Future of the

What are the different types of legacy that I can leave?

Providing for your loved ones is the most important thing to consider when writing a Will. However, once they have been considered you may wish to leave a legacy to support our work. One way of doing this is to include a residuary legacy to the Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust.

Types of gifts you can leave in your Will:

- A residuary legacy is a percentage of your estate after everyone else has been provided for.
- A gift of a fixed sum of money is called a pecuniary legacy. Please note that the value of this type of legacy will decrease over time, as the cost of living increases.
- A particular named item left as a gift in your Will is known as a specific legacy; for example, property, antiques, jewellery or shares.
- Legacies made on the basis of another event happening first are called contingent gifts. For example, your Will could state that a gift only applies if all other beneficiaries named in your Will die before you do.
- A reversionary legacy is a gift which someone can benefit from in their lifetime. For instance, your house could be left for the use of a relative. When they die it could pass to someone else, or to a charity.

Financial benefits of leaving a gift in your Will

Inheritance tax is paid if the value of your estate exceeds the threshold set by the government – currently £325,000. Inheritance tax of 40% is paid on the amount that exceeds this threshold. So, out of every £1 over the threshold your beneficiaries will only keep 60p, and 40p will go to the government. However, gifts to charities are generally exempt from Inheritance Tax. If you leave a charitable gift it will be deducted from your estate before Inheritance Tax liability is calculated. For the latest information, please visit hmrc.gov.uk

Assessing your estate

Before you draft your Will, you should:

- List everything that you own – your property, shares, investments, life insurance policies, bank balances, car and all your valuables and possessions.
- Make a rough calculation of the value of your assets.
- Decide which people and/or charities you wish to benefit from your estate.

Let people know what you have done

It is essential your executors know their role and where to find your Will. You should keep it in a safe place, such as with your legal advisor or bank. It is helpful if you brief your executors about this, and provide them with key contacts in respect of your bank account, insurance, investments, etc.

Drafting your Will

It is always best to ask a legal advisor to draft your Will. He or she will know the correct form of words and can avoid ambiguities and misunderstandings. In the meantime, these three basic rules may be helpful:

- Two adult witnesses must be present when you sign your Will. They must be of sound mind and vision. You must also be present when they sign the Will.
- Your witnesses do not need to know the content of your Will, but you must not use anyone who will benefit from your Will, or whose spouse will benefit.
- The Will should set out the arrangements for distributing all your estate. It should appoint up to four people as executors. It should also dictate who is to receive any residue after the specific sums have been allocated.

Adding to an existing Will

If personal circumstances change, you can add a codicil to an existing Will. A codicil is a simple form of wording, enabling you to alter or add to the original provisions in your Will, for example you may wish to leave a donation to the SVR Charitable Trust (Registered Charity No. 1092723.) You need to contact your legal advisor to add a codicil.

A deferred gift

For many people, one of the most effective ways of supporting a charity is by leaving a gift in their Will. Remember that the value of your estate at death comprises everything you possess: property, furniture, car, bank and building society balances, shares and other assets.

Your legal advisor will help you arrange matters to the best advantage of all concerned.

Becoming a Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust Guardian

If you have already included the Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust in your Will, it is helpful to let us know, so that we have the opportunity to express our gratitude and send you a Guardian's pin badge and updates on the activities of the Severn Valley Railway and the Charitable Trust, as well as inviting you as a guest to our special 'thank you' events.

Our pledge of discretion

We respect the fact that leaving a legacy is a very personal and voluntary decision. Please be assured that we will treat the information you choose to provide with the utmost confidentiality. We are, of course, equally grateful for the legacy support of those who choose not to advise us of their deferred gift.

Guardians Club

When you let us know that you have left a legacy in your Will to the SVR Charitable Trust, we will invite you to become a member of our Guardians' Club. You will receive a pin badge as well as regular updates on our work, and we will invite you to our informative and enjoyable Guardians' events at the Railway.

Lasting Tribute Day

If you leave a gift in your Will of more than £25,000, after you have passed away we will invite your family to celebrate your life and your commitment to the SVR with private use of our luxurious saloon on the full 32-mile round trip. We call these special days a Lasting Tribute, as this is exactly what we see your final gift as being.

PLEDGE FORM

When you complete and return this form to let us know you're planning to include the Severn Valley Railway Charitable Trust in your Will, or have already done so, we'll be able to acknowledge your support and invite you to special behind-the-scenes events as a member of our Guardians' Club.

Gifts in memory

Donating in memory of someone special can be a positive way to celebrate their life, while also helping to raise vital funds for the SVR Charitable Trust.

Many families choose to ask for donations in lieu of flowers at a funeral. It can be a great comfort to remember a loved one in this meaningful way.

Donations like these not only honour the life of a loved one, but also make a real difference in helping to preserve the Railway for future generations.

Thank you
